

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW

ABOUT THE JANUS DECISION

The Supreme Court just ruled that public sector unions cannot charge ‘fair share’ fees to non-members for the cost of their representation. The corporate billionaires who funded this lawsuit (known as “Janus”) hope that the decision will weaken our ability to join together to fight for better wages, benefits and public services.

They don’t know who they’re up against

Public workers like us know that the most powerful resource we have is our unity and our commitment to fighting back. We’ve been inspired by the solidarity of teachers and other school district employees in states like Oklahoma, West Virginia, and Arizona who have stood up to greedy corporations that were destroying public education in their states.

We will not allow corporate special interests to turn back the clock on our freedom to join together to improve our pay, to speak up for our communities, and to improve our workplaces.

TOGETHER WE ARE CWA STRONG.
